

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. PREFATORY NOTE.

IN preparing this new edition of Stimson's Law Glossary an effort has been made to retain the excellent and scholarly work of Professor Stimson as originally prepared by him. Few changes have been found advisable.

The work of the present editor, therefore, has been mainly to supplement rather than revise. In pursuing this plan nearly two thousand important words have been added, and many citations and references inserted designed to lead the researcher to a fuller understanding of the meaning and practical use of the words defined and explained. These references are designedly to books and reports most accessible to students of Law, and their needs have ever been held paramount. For their use, too, an explanatory list of abbreviations used in law books has been carefully prepared, and added under the title "Abbreviations." This will undoubtedly be found an important addition to the general scope of the work. A table of British Regnal years has also been added in the Appendix. References to words defined in this book are in small capitals, and references to other books and decisions are in italics.

DEFINITIONS AND TRANSLATIONS OF LAW TERMS

A, ad, fr. Has (from avoir, aver).

A, ab, l.¹ From; by; of; with; in; at. The letter a is sometimes used to distinguish the page of a folio, thus: Coke, Litt. 112 a, the second being marked b, and so on with other letters. It is also used to indicate the first of a series of documents, as, Exhibit "A," or "a 1," etc. Although the article a is generally a singular term it is also used as plural in the sense of "any," and is then applied to more than a single object; see 141 Mass. 266; 101 N. Y. 453. A cancellis: the Chancellor. A caelo usque ad centrum: from the heavens to the centre of the earth. A communi observantia non est recedendum: there should be no departure from common observance. A consiliis: of counsel; a counsellor. It is sometimes used in civil law in place of a responsis. A contrario sensu: on the other hand; in the opposite sense. A fortiori: by a stronger reason; much more. A gratia: by grace, and not of right. A jure suo cadunt: they fall from (lose) their right. Applied to cases of loss of property by abandonment. A latere: collateral; without right. Frequently used in speaking of the succession to property. A me: from me. A term used in grants expressing tenure by the grantee directly of the superior lord; opposed to de me, expressing tenure by the grantee of the grantor. To pay a me, is to pay from my money. A mensa et thoro: from bed and board. The term is used to designate a kind of divorce which is more a separation of the parties by law, than a dissolution of the marriage. It is not an absolute divorce. A morte testatoris: from the testator's death. A multo fortiori: by far the stronger — reason, right, equity. A nativitate: from infancy. A non domino: by one not the owner. A non posse ad non esse sequitur argumentum necessarie negative, licet non affirmative: from the impossibility of a thing you may infer its nonexistence; but not, from the possibility of a thing, its existence. A piratis et latronibus capta dominium non mutant: things taken by pirates or robbers do not change their ownership. A posteriori: applied to an argument founded on observation or experiment. The term a priori is used of such arguments as rest on analogy or abstract considerations. A quo: from which. The Court a quo is the court from which a cause has been removed to a higher court, which latter is called the Court ad quem. A quo invito aliquid exigi potest: from whom something may be exacted against his will. The definition of a debtor in perfect obligation. A retro: behind; in arrear. A sociis: see NOSCITUR A SOCIIS. A tempore cujus contrarii memoria non existit: from time of which there exists no memory to the contrary. A teneris annis: by reason of youth. A verbis legis non est recedendum: there should be no departure from the words of the law. A vinculo matrimonii: from the bond of marriage. A divorce which completely dissolves the marriage tie.

*A, fr.*¹ At; to; with; in; for; by. A aver et tener: to have and to hold. A causa de cy: for this reason. A ce: for this purpose. A fine force: of pure necessity. A large: at large; free. A l'impossible nul n'est tenu: no one is bound to do what is impossible. A pais: to the country; at issue. A prendre: to take; see PROFITS À PRENDRE. A rendre: to render; yield; see PROFITS À RENDRE. A savoir, a saver: to know; to wit. A terme: for a term; for the term. A tort: wrongfully.

*Ab, l.*² From. Abactis: a notary; a registrar. One who records words as they are spoken. Ab agendo: unable to act. Ab alienatio: a method of transferring lands between Roman citizens. Ab ante: in advance. Ab antecedente: beforehand. Ab antiquo: of old. Ab assuetis non fit injuria: from things to which we are used, no legal wrong arises. Ab extra: from without; see 14 Mass. 151. Ab inconvenienti: from what is inconvenient, or improper; see ARGUMENTUM. Ab inde: from that time forward; thence. Ab initio: from the beginning; before; contrasted with postea and ex post facto. Ab intestat: intestate. Ab intestato: from an intestate; used of property acquired from one dying without a will. Ab invito: unwillingly; by or from an unwilling person. Ab irato: by one who is angry. Used where a gift or devise is made adversely to the interests of heirs. Ab judicatio: a removal from court. Ab olim: of old.

Abadengo, span. Lands belonging to ecclesiastical corporations.

Abandon. To give up; see ABANDONMENT.

Abandonment. Desertion; surrender; relinquishment of property; as when an insured person makes over his rights in the goods to the insurer. In Maritime Law, see 5 Mich. 368; of Homestead, 75 Ia. 631; by Husband or Wife, 27 Conn. 25; in Insurance, 39 Ark. 264; of Public Highway, 130 N. Y. 618; of Public Lands, 25 Neb. 420; of Rights, 9 Met. (Mass.) 395.

Abatementum, l., or Abatement. (A making less; a destroying.) Of a nuisance, when the party injured removes or destroys it; see Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 241. Of freehold, when a stranger enters, and keeps possession of, lands, after the death of the person last seised, and before the entry of the person next entitled. Of legacies, when there are not assets to pay all debts or legacies in full; in like manner, there is abatement of debts among creditors. Of a suit, when it is determined for want of proper parties, as by death, marriage, or bankruptcy; see 3 Bl. Com. 301; Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., §§ 293-298; or by Pleas in abatement: these are pleas which only suspend the right to sue; or they defeat a particular action without affecting the right; see PLEA; Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 308.

Abatre, abbatre, abater, fr. To abate, throw down, or destroy. Abatre maison: to raze a house.

Abatuda. Diminished; as where coins are clipped or lessened in value.

Abatus per vent: thrown down by the wind.

Abbaiaunce, abbaizance. Abeyance. q. v.

Abbreviations. Of most abbreviations the court may take judicial notice; see 4 Wig. Ev., § 2538.

By reason of arbitrariness in coining abbreviations no list can be called complete. The following list, however, will be found to contain practically all for which reference will be required:

Also, a court; the sittings of a court; an ordinance or statute; a tax or tribute; an adjustment or measure; an action at law; a real action; a writ. The assizes: sessions of courts of assize and nisi prius, which are composed of two or more commissioners (in England) called judges of assize and nisi prius, who are sent, by special commission from the Crown, on circuits all around the kingdom, to try, by a jury of the respective counties, such matters of fact as are then under dispute at Westminster Hall; see 3 Bl. Com. 58. These judges are judges of the superior common-law courts, and the successors of the ancient "justices in eyre," justiciarii in itinere; they sit by virtue of several authorities, viz.: 1. Commission of oyer and terminer, to deal with treasons, felonies, etc. 2. Of gaol delivery, to try every prisoner in gaol, for whatever offence. 3. Of nisi prius, to try all questions of fact on cases in which issue has been joined in the courts of Westminster. 4. Of peace, by which all justices of the peace and sheriffs are bound to be present at their sittings. 5. Of assize, to take assizes and have jurisdiction of writs of assize. Action of assize: a writ and real action, having for its object the recovery of lands whereof the demandant or his ancestors had unjustly been disseised. It was not necessary, as in a writ of entry, to show the unlawful beginning of the tenant's possession. Rents of assize: the certain established rents of the freeholders and ancient copyholders of a manor, which cannot be departed from or varied. Those of the freeholders are frequently called chief-rents, reditus capitales; and both sorts are called quitrents, quieti redditus, because thereby the tenant goes quit and free of other services. Assisa cadere (to fall from the assize): to be nonsuited; see 3 Bl. Com. 402. Assisa cadit in juratam (the assize falls to a jury): the assize is converted into a jury. Assisa continuanda: an ancient writ directed to the justices of assize to continue a cause, when time is desired for the production of records. Assisa proroganda: a writ to stay proceedings at the assizes because one of the parties was engaged in the King's business. Assize of darrein presentment, Assisa ultimæ presentationis, l. An assize of last presentation. An action to determine who had the gift of a church living, superseded by quare impedit. Assize of fresh force, Assisa friscæ fortis, l. An action, or assize, which lay by a custom of a city or borough for the recovery of lands of which the demandant had been disseised within forty days. Assize of mort d'ancestor, fr., Assisa mortis antecessoris, l. An assize to recover land of which the demandant's father, mother, uncle, aunt, brother, sister, nephew, or niece died seised, and a stranger abated; see 3 Bl. Com. 185. Assize of novel disseisin, Assisa novæ disseisinæ, l. An assize to recover land of which the complainant had been disseised since the last circuit of the justices in eyre, i.e., within seven years. Assize of nuisance, assisa de nocumento, l. An assize to remedy a nuisance, by having it abated and recovering damages; see 3 Bl. Com. 221. Assize of utrum, assisa juris utrum, l. An assize sometimes called the parson's writ of right, which lay for him or a vicar to recover church lands alienated by his predecessors; see 3 Bl. Com. 257. Grand assize: a peculiar jury, introduced by Henry II. and authorized in lieu of battel for the trial of writs of right. The sheriff returned four knights, who chose twelve others, making in all sixteen recognitors. All these assizes are now obsolete.

Bill. A written statement or declaration; a complaint; a record; an account. The word has many special and limited meanings.

I. In legal procedure: (Bill for cancellation: see BILL, I. 13.)

1. Bill in chancery or equity: the complaint of a suitor in chancery, in the form of a petition, stating the case and praying relief or discovery. It is the usual mode of beginning a chancery suit, and corresponds to the declaration in an action at law. 2. Bill of conformity: a bill in equity filed by an executor or administrator against the creditors when the estate is so much involved that he cannot safely administer it without the direction of a court of chancery. 3. Bill of costs: an itemized statement of the costs awarded the plaintiff or defendant in an action. It is demandable as of right before payment of costs. 4. Bill of discovery: a bill in equity praying for the disclosure of books, writings, or facts lying within the defendant's knowledge; and claiming no other relief except delay of a process or suit; see DISCOVERY. 5. Bill of exceptions: a statement of the directions given by the judge, or his decisions on points of law, to which the party excepting objects. When signed by the judge, the bill becomes part of the record, and may be brought before the court in banc, or a superior court, for review. Its object is to furnish information of record to the court of errors; see 1 Wig. Ev., § 20. 6. Bill of indictment: a written accusation of one or more persons of a crime or misdemeanor, presented to a grand jury. If they decide the accused ought to be tried, the return is made a "true bill," and thenceforward it is called the indictment. Otherwise the return is made "not a true bill," "not found," or "ignoramus" (we do not know). 7. Bill of interpleader: when a person possesses goods or money under no claim of title, and two or more parties make such claim, he being in danger of a suit from one or both of them; he may have this bill in equity to force them to interplead, that is, to litigate the title among themselves, and get judgment which is conclusive upon all. In England, there is a summary process of interpleader at law. 8. Bill of Middlesex: a civil process by which the Court of King's Bench sitting in Middlesex assumed jurisdiction in civil cases without an original writ from the Crown. It was founded on a fictitious trespass committed within the county, of which the K. B. always had jurisdiction; and was a kind of capias. If the defendant was not in Middlesex, a writ of latitat issued on the return of non est inventus (he has not been found) directed to the sheriff of the county where he was, alleging that the defendant lurks and wanders about in such county. The true cause of action was introduced, in both writs, by an ac etiam, q. v. 9. Bill for a new trial: a bill in equity praying for an injunction after a judgment at law, on grounds of fraud in obtaining the judgment. 10. Bill or original bill: the old method of commencing an action in the K. B., without a writ. It resembled a declaration, and was in the form of a complaint, alleging a fictitious trespass to give jurisdiction; see BILL OF MIDDLESEX. 11. Bill of particulars: the itemized statement of the demand or debts for which an action is brought, or of the defendant's set-off. 12. Bill of peace: a bill in equity brought by one threatened with a number of suits by one or more persons based on the same claim, or involving the same controversy, to obtain a perpetual injunction of such suits. 13. Bill to perpetuate testimony: a bill in equity brought to obtain and preserve the testimony of witnesses with reference to some matter which is not in litigation, nor can be put in litigation by the plaintiff. The converse of a Bill for cancellation, which is brought to destroy evidence which may affect the plaintiff injuriously at some future time. So Bills to remove cloud upon title, to settle and confirm a title which is really good, when the possessor fears possible injury from evidence or deeds in possession of another, who has not brought action. All these bills may be called (14.) Bills quia timet (because he fears), which last title also includes bills filed by a remainderman of realty, or a person having a future interest in personalty, to prevent injury to such property or his rights thereto from the neglect or default of another. 15. Bill of privilege: the old method of proceeding against any attorney or officer of the court, who was not liable to arrest. 16. Bill of review: a bill to review a judgment in chancery, either for error or by reason of new evidence. 17. Bill of revivor: one brought to continue a suit in equity which abated, as by death, or marriage of the (female) plaintiff, before its proper consummation. 18. Supplemental bill: one filed in addition to an original bill in equity, to supply some defect by new matter which cannot be introduced by amendment. 19. Bill to take testimony de bene esse: a bill brought to get the testimony of an aged or infirm witness, or one about to leave the country, to a suit already begun; see DE BENE ESSE. 20. True bill: see BILL, I. 6.

II. In legislation or constitutional law: the draft of a law submitted to a legislative body for enactment. A special act. The solemn declaration of a legislature. 1. Bill of attainder: an act of Parliament or a legislature attainting a person; see ATTAINDER. 2. Bill of indemnity: an act of Parliament passed every session for the relief of those who have, unwittingly or unavoidably, not taken the necessary oaths of office. 3. Bill of mortality: the list of deaths and births in a municipal district. These records were introduced in London about the time of the Plague; hence the expression was used to designate the city limits. 4. Bill of rights: a legislative declaration of popular rights and liberties, especially that of 1 W. & M., st. 2, c. 2.

III. In mercantile law: the written statement of a debt, demand, or contract. 1. Bill of adventure: a writing signed by a merchant or ship-owner to the effect that the property and risk in goods shipped in his own name belong to another, to whom he is accountable for the proceeds; see ADVENTURE. 2. Bills of credit: paper issued by the authority of a state, on the faith of the state, designed to circulate as money; see 11 Pet. 257. Also, a letter giving a person credit on the agents or correspondents of the maker for goods or money. 3. Bill of debt: the old general term for a written engagement of a merchant to pay money on demand or at a specified time. It included bonds and negotiable paper. 4. Bill of exchange: a written order from one person to another to pay a certain sum of money to a third person, or his order, or bearer; see Big. B. N. & C. c. II., § 1. The first person is the drawer; the second, the drawee, who, when he accepts it, becomes the acceptor; the third, the payee; the person to whom the payee indorses the bill, the indorsee; and the person in actual legal possession of the bill, whether indorsee, payee, or bearer, the holder. A bill is inland when the drawer and drawee are residents of the same State or Country (25 Miss. 143), and foreign when they are not so resident; see 10 Pet. 572; Big. B. N. & C. c. II., § 1. 5. Bill of lading: a receipt issued by the master of a ship, or other common carrier, to the shipper of goods, containing the contract of conveyance. It is also a symbol of the goods themselves, property in which will pass, subject to certain liens, by proper transfer of the bill of lading; see 101 U. S. 557. 6. Bill of sale: an assignment in writing of personal chattels. 7. Bill single: a bill of debt without penalty, superseded by bills of exchange and notes. If with a penalty it was called a Bill penal, and corresponds to a bond or obligation.

Consideratio curiæ, l. The judgment of the court.

Consideration. Compensation; a quid pro quo; see 2 Q. B. 851; 1 Will. Cas. Cont. 150 et seq.; 110 Mass. 389. Good consideration: one founded on natural affection, or blood relationship, as opposed to valuable consideration: a profit or loss capable of being estimated in money; sometimes represented as money, money's worth, and marriage. Express consideration, when stated in the contract; implied, when arising from the law; executed, when performed prior to the promise founded upon it; executory, when to be performed after the promise is made.

Consideratum est per curiam, l. It is adjudged by the court.

Consignee. One to whom a consignment of goods, or other property, is made.

Consignment. The goods or property sent to a consignee. The transmission of the goods.

Consignor. One who makes a consignment.

Consiliarius. A counsellor as distinguished from an attorney or pleader; an assistant judge.

Consilium. A day set for a hearing. A case set down for argument.

Consimili casu, in, l. See CASU CONSIMILI.

Consisting. Made up of; limited to things specifically mentioned.

Consistory. See COURT, 80.

Consolato del mare. A code of sea laws in force about the Mediterranean from the eleventh century.

Consolidation rule. A rule for uniting several actions brought by the same parties on the same cause, whereby the parties are bound in all the actions according to the verdict in one; see 3 S. & R. 264; 19 Wend. 63.

Consols, consolidated annuities. The English funded debt.

Consort. A companion.

Consortium, l. A union of fortunes; marriage; see PER QUOD.

Conspiracy. An unlawful combining together of two or more persons to accomplish an unlawful act, or a lawful act by unlawful means; see 4 Met. (Mass.) 123; 30 Hun, 588; 143 U. S. 197; May Cr. L., § 186; Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 575.

Constat, l. It is clear, or evident. Constat de persona: there is no doubt as to the person.

Constate. To evidence or establish.

Constating instruments. The documents which fix the constitution or charter of a corporation; see 37 N. J. Eq. 363.

Constitutio, l. An act, ordinance or statute; a constitution; see CLAREN-ENDON.

Constitutional. Conforming to or secured by the principles or rules of a constitution; see Cooley Const. Law, 3d ed., 386-390.

Constructio legis non facit injuriam. The construction of the law works [must so be made as to work] no wrong.

Construction. Conclusions beyond the text, but within the spirit of it; see 36 N. J. L. 209.

Constructive. Made out; deduced by construction; inferred; construed, or interpreted by law; see TRUST.

Construe. To explain and apply, even to vary the sense; a stronger word than Interpret; to explain or render intelligible.

Consuetudo, pl. consuetudines, l. Custom; customs; usage; practice. Consuetudinibus et servitiis: see DE. Consuetudo debet esse certa; nam incerta pro nullis habentur: a custom should be certain, for uncertain things are held as naught. Consuetudo est altera lex: custom is another law. Consuetudo est optimus interpret legum: custom is the best interpreter of laws. Consuetudo ex certa causa rationabili usitata privat communem legem: an established custom with a certain reasonable cause supersedes the common law. Consuetudo loci-manerii, est observanda: the custom of the place, the manor, is to be observed. Consuetudo semel reprobata non potest amplius induci: a custom once disallowed cannot again be set up.

Contiguous. In actual close contact; touching; near; neighboring; see 69 N. Y. 191.

Contingency. Something which may happen; see 39 Barb. 272.

Contingency with a double aspect. A contingent remainder limited in substitution of another contingent remainder.

Contingent. Dependent on the happening of some other event, which may or may not happen; see 39 Barb. 272; USE; REMAINDER.

Contingent damages. See DAMAGES.

Contingent estate. One depending for its effect upon an event which may or may not happen, as, for example, the birth of a child.

Contingent remainder. One marked out so as to depend upon an event or condition which may never happen or be performed, at least not until after the determination of the preceding estate; see 152 Pa. 18; 89 Mich. 428.

Continual claim. A sort of attempt at entry, made by a party disseised as near the land as possible. It worked as an actual entry to keep alive his right if made once every year and day.

Continuance. Adjournment, or postponement, of an action. It was formerly entered on the record; and, if made before declaration, was by dies datus, a day given to proceed; if after declaration, by imparlance, leave to talk with the plaintiff, to plead; if after issue, by vicecomes non misit breve, the sheriff hath not sent the writ; and after verdict, by curia advisari vult, the court wishes to consult, where the point of law was novel or difficult.

Continuando, l. By continuing; an allegation in declaration for trespass, whereby the plaintiff recovered damages for a succession of like or repeated trespasses, without bringing more than one cause of action; see Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 309.

Contra, l. Against; contrary to. Contra bonos mores: against good morals. Contra formam doni: against the form of the grant; see FORMEDON. Contra formam collationis (against the form of the gift): an old writ which lay for the grantor of lands to be held by divine service, when they were wrongfully alienated. Contra formam feoffment, (against the form of the feoffment): an old writ which lay for a tenant distrained for more services than by the charter of his ancestor was feoffment, required to perform. Contra formam statuti in hoc casu nuper edict' et provis': against the form of the statute in such case lately made and provided. Contra jus belli: against the law of war. Contra jus commune: against common right. Contra negantem principia non est disputandum: you cannot argue with one who denies principles. Contra non valentem agere nulla currit præscriptio: no prescription runs against one unable to act. Contra omnes gentes: against all the world. Contra pacem domini regis: against the peace of our lord the King. Contra proferentem: against the one putting it forth.

Contracausator. One prosecuted for a crime.

Contractus, l., Contrat, fr. Contract. Aleatory contract: one the performance of which on either or both sides depends on an uncertain event. Bilateral contract: one consisting of two promises, one made on each side, mutual consideration for each other; in contradistinction from a unilateral contract, where one party only makes a promise; see Har. Cont. § 123. Consensual contract: one complete by the mere agreement of the parties, as distinguished from a real contract, where some object is delivered by way of sale, pledge, or bailment. Executed contract: one which is completed at the time it is made, like a sale for cash, as distinct from executory contract, one where some further act remains to be done. The former conveys a chose in possession, q. v.; the latter creates a chose in action, q. v. Pignorative contract: one pertaining to a pledge or pawn. Quasi-contracts: those implied in law. They are to be distinguished from pure contracts in that they arise without the intention of the defendant, and even in spite of his actual dissent; see Har. Cont. § 20; 109 U. S. 285; 2 Wall. 450. Oral, parol, or more properly simple contract: one created by words or writing not under seal, as distinguished from special contract, covenant, or specialty: a contract under seal, which implies a consideration. Contract of beneficence: one by which only one of the parties is benefited, as a loan, deposit, or mandate. Contracts of record: those evidenced by matter of record, as judgments or recognizances. Contractus ex turpi causa, vel contra bonos mores, nullus est: a contract founded on a base consideration, or against good morals, is void. Contractus legem ex conventionione accipiunt: contracts take their law from the agreement of the parties. Contractus est quasi actus contra actum: a contract is, as it were, act against act.

Contraescriptura, span. A counter-letter.

Contramandatio placiti, l. (Countermand of a plea.) The respiting a defendant, giving him a longer time to answer.

Contrapositio, l. A plea or answer.

- Contrarotalator, l. Controller; an auditor; a keeper of accounts.
- Contre, conter, fr. Against.
- Contrectatio rei alienæ, animo furandi, est furtum, l. The touching another's property with intent to steal is theft.
- Contribution. 1. A suit in equity, brought by one who has discharged a debt or liability, to compel those jointly liable to pay their share; see 3 Del. Ch. 280. 2. Ratable division of losses or liabilities; see 19 Vt. 59.
- Contributions facienda. See DE.
- Contributory. A present or past member of a company now being wound up, who may be compelled to contribute to the assets for the purpose of paying creditors.
- Controver. One who makes up false news.
- Contumace capiendo. See DE.
- Contumacy. Contempt of court; persistent disobedience.
- Contumax. An outlaw; one who refuses to appear and answer to a criminal charge.
- Contusion. An injury or lesion, arising from a shock of a body with a large surface, which presents no loss of substance and no apparent wound; see Ewell Med. Juris. 53.
- Conusance, conusor, conusee, etc. See COGNIZANCE, ETC. Conusance, fr.: acknowledgment. Conusant: knowing. Conus: known. Cognustre: to acknowledge. Conusor: the party entering into a recognition for debt. Conusee: the party to whom it is given.
- Convalescere, l. To gain strength; to become valid.
- Convenable, fr. Suitable; agreeable; fitting.
- Convenire, l. To sue; to prosecute; to covenant. Convenit: it is (or was) agreed. Conventio: an agreement; a covenant.
- Conventio vincit legem, l. [Express] agreement prevails over law. Conventio privatorum non potest publico juri derogare: the agreement of private persons cannot injure the public right.
- Conventional. Agreed upon; opposed to that which is created by operation of law.
- Conversantes, l. Conversant; acquainted; commorant.
- Conversation. See CRIMINAL CONVERSATION.
- Conversion. 1. Wrongful appropriation of another's property to one's own use; see 44 Me. 197; Big. Torts, 8th ed., 390; Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 219. 2. In equity, that change in the nature of property by which, for certain purposes, real estate is considered as personal, and personal estate as real, and transmissible and descendible as such; see 32 N. J. Eq. 181.
- Convey, Conveer, fr. To transfer. Conveyance: a document effecting a transfer of property, usually real estate, other than a will, a lease for a short term, or an executory contract of sale; see 21 Barb. 551. It is original or primary, if by it an estate or interest first is created or arises, as in the case of feoffments, gifts, grants, leases, exchanges, and partitions; derivative or secondary, if it presupposes, or depends upon, some other conveyance, which it enlarges, confirms, executes, or modifies, as in the case of releases, confirmation, surrenders, assignments, and defeasances; tortious, if it conveys a larger estate than the grantor holds, as in feoffments, which worked a forfeiture; innocent, if it only conveys the estate the grantor actually has, as in the case of bargains and sales, covenants to stand seised, and releases. By statute all conveyances are now innocent, and even a feoffment will have no tortious operation. Conveyancing: the law of the alienation of real property. Conveyance by record: one evidenced by the authority of a court of record; as fines and recoveries.

Cooling time. Time within which aroused passion should subside; see May Cr. L., § 228.

Coopertus, l. Covered; covert.

Coparcenary. Land is held in coparcenary when there is "unity of title, possession, and interest." It happens when land falls to two or more persons by descent ab intestato; as to two or more women, at common law, or men, in gavelkind tenure; and is subject to courtesy and dower. On alienation by one coparcener, it becomes tenancy in common; there is no right of survivorship, and on the death of one coparcener his heirs hold the same estate in coparcenary as before; see Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 107; COMMON, TENANCY IN; JOINT TENANCY.

Copartner. A member of a partnership.

Copartnership. A partnership.

Copia, l. 1. Opportunity; means of access. 2. A copy.

Copulatio verborum indicat acceptationem in eodem sensu, l. The coupling together of words shows that they are to be understood in the same sense.

Copy. A reproduction of language, design, device, or work of art. Certified or office copy: one attested by the officer who is intrusted with the custody of records. Examined copy: one compared with the original or record. Exemplified copy: one attested under the seal of court.

Copyhold. Tenure of manor lands by copy of court roll, at the will of the lord, according to the custom of the manor. Originally pure villeinage, it has gradually become divested of its base services and approached a state resembling socage, and the lord cannot evict without cause or against custom; see 2 Bl. Com. 95, 147; 4 id. 439.

Coram domino rege ubicunque tunc fuerit Angliæ, l. Before [our] lord the King, wherever he shall then be in England. Coram ipso rege (before the King himself): in the K. B. Coram nobis: before us; a name given to a writ of error on a judgment in the K. B. If on a judgment in other courts it was coram vobis,—before you. Hence, the latter term is used when the proceedings of another court are to be reviewed; the former, when the proceedings of a court are to be reviewed by itself; see ERROR. Coram me vel iudicialiis meis: before me or my justices. Coram non iudice (before one not a judge): in a court having no jurisdiction; see Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., §§ 248, 251. Coram paribus de vicineto: before the [his] peers of the neighborhood. Coram sectatoribus: before the suitors.

Co-respondent. The person charged with adultery with the libellee in a suit for divorce.

Corn. In its most extended sense means every sort of grain and includes peas and beans. In the United States it means Indian corn; see 53 Ala. 474.

Cornage. Tenure by winding an alarm-horn; a species of grand serjeanty; see 2 Bl. Com. 74.

Corodium, l., corody. An allowance of victuals, clothing, or money due from a religious house to its founder for the support of such person as he should appoint; see Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 60.

Corona, l., crown. Placita coronæ: pleas of the crown; criminal actions. Coronator, l., coroner. A magistrate authorized to inquire concerning sudden deaths, shipwrecks, and treasure-trove. He was also conservator of the peace, in certain cases replacing the sheriff; see 20 Ga. 336.

Corporal. Pertaining to the body of a person; bodily.

Corporal oath. An oath taken by laying hand on the Gospels; a solemn oath; see 1 Ind. 184.

Corporalis injuria non recipit æstimationem de futuro, l. A personal injury cannot receive satisfaction from a future course of proceedings.

Corporation. An artificial legal person, persisting through the change or succession of its members; see 122 Ill. 293. It has power to act or contract, usually under a common seal, and to regulate its actions by by-laws. It is a corporation sole if consisting of one person; aggregate, if of more than one person at the same time; ecclesiastical, if constituted of religious persons for spiritual purposes; lay, if constituted for secular purposes. Lay corporations are divided into: civil corporations, existing for purposes of profit, and eleemosynary, or charitable. The former include municipal corporations, as counties, townships, villages, and public corporations, which exist for the public interest or advantage, and private corporations.

Corporeal. Having a body; palpable; see Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 26.

Corpse. The dead body of a human being; see 8 Pick. 370.

Corpus, l. Body; the capital of a fund. Corpus comitatus: all the inhabitants of a county; the county at large. Corpus cum causa: see HABEAS CORPUS. Corpus delicti (the substance of the fault): the fact that a crime has actually been committed; the subject of the crime, or its visible effect; see May Cr. L., §§ 126, 128. Corpus humanum non recipit æstimationem: the human body is not susceptible of valuation. Corpus juris civilis or canonici: the body of the civil or Roman canon law. The former includes the Institutes, the Pandects, or Digest, the Code, and the Novels of Justinian. The latter

- includes Gratian's Decree, Gregory's Decretals, the Sixth Decretal, the Clementine Constitution, and the Extravagants of John and his successors; see 1 Bl. Com. 81; CIVIL LAW; CANON LAW.
- Corregidor, span. A magistrate having jurisdiction over civil matters and misdemeanors.
- Correi credendi, debendi, l. Joint creditors; debtors; creditors or debtors in solido.
- Corruptive, l. Corruptly; against the law.
- Corruption of blood. See ATTAINDER.
- Corsepresent. A mortuary offering, generally the second-best beast of a person to be buried, taken along with the corpse and presented to the priest; see MORTUARY.
- Corsned, sax. The morsel of execration; a piece of barley bread given to an accused with solemn oaths and incantations. If it stuck in his throat, he was deemed guilty.
- Cosbering. A prerogative of the lord, as to lie and feast himself and his followers at his tenant's house.
- Cosinage, fr. Collateral relationship. An old writ lying for an heir against one who entered the land of a great-great-grandfather (tresayle) or distant collateral relation; see AIEL.
- Costs. The expenses of an action, usually awarded the winner and recoverable from the loser. Bill of costs: an itemized statement of the costs in a suit. Costs de incremento: costs of increase, adjudged by the court in addition to those found by the jury. Costs of prosecution: includes only those incurred in prosecution, and excludes those incurred in defence. Costs to abide event: when the same party prevails as on the former trial he is awarded the costs of first trial.
- Cota, cotagium, l. A cot; cottage. Cotarius: a cottager.
- Cotland. Land held by a cottager in socage or villeinage.
- Cottage. A dwelling-house, with a garden.
- Couchant et levant, fr. Lying down and rising up; see LEVANT. Coucher de soel: sunset.
- Count. A distinct statement of the cause of action in a declaration, or of the charge in an indictment. In real actions, the declaration. Common counts: distinct statements of a cause of action so varied as to correspond with requirements of proof.
- Counter, fr., count. To declare; to plead orally. Countamus: we declare.
- Counterclaim. A broad term embracing both SET-OFF and RECOUPMENT (q. v.), but broader than either; see Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 292.
- Counterplea. A plea answering some matter incidental to the main object of the suit; as in answer to AID-PRAYER, OYER, or VOUCHER, q. v.
- Counter-roll. A roll or account kept by one officer as a check upon another.

Countez, fr. (Count ye.) A direction given by the clerk of the court to the crier to count the jury.

Countour, fr., countor. An advocate or sergeant at law.

Countre, fr. Against.

Country. The inhabitants of a district from which a jury is to be summoned. To put one's self on the country is to claim jury trial. Country cause: a cause out of London and Middlesex.

County corporate. A city or town with land annexed, privileged to be a county by itself. County court: see COURT, 29, 41. County Palatine: a county where the owner had royal privileges, as of pardoning offences or issuing writs; there were formerly three such counties, — Chester, Durham, and Lancaster.

Coupable, fr. Guilty.

Cour de Cassation, fr. The supreme judicial tribunal of France; a court of final resort established in 1790.

Courir, fr. To run. Courge, court: he runs; it runs.

Court. A place wherein justice is judicially administered; see § BL. Com. 23. British and American Courts are as follows:

I. English Courts.¹

A. The superior common-law courts were anciently as follows:—

1. Witenagemote. This court or assembly existed in Anglo-Saxon times, and was an "assembly of the wise men" of the nation, who met to make laws for the nation at large and to provide for the general welfare and protection. Incidentally, they adjudged upon disputes of the King's thegns and great men, cleric and lay. Its functions were legislative and judicial, chiefly the former. It was succeeded in the Anglo-Norman period by a similar body called both (2.) the King's Court and (3.) the Great Council, which must not be confounded with the King's Court proper (see COURT, 5), and was the original of Parliament. 4. The Thenning-mannagemot, or Thegnmen's Court, in Saxon times was an aristocratic court of original jurisdiction, open only to the King's thegns or tenants in capite; and under Edward the Confessor was called the Aula regis, Curia regis, or regia, delegates from which constituted the Court of Itinerant Justices; see Holdsworth's Hist. vol. I, 32. 5. The King's Court and the Exchequer (see COURT, 11) were the two royal courts of the Norman period. The King's Court consisted of a body of great men attendant on the King, and was, in a sense, the successor of the Aula regis, but with much wider jurisdiction. By the use of writs it usurped the jurisdiction of the popular courts; and, differing in this respect also from the Aula regis, had appellate jurisdiction from them. In the twelfth century, a smaller King's Court was created, five persons being appointed to hear complaints; and in 1179, its justiciars were appointed to act both on circuit and in the presence of the King as the Bench. The earlier and larger King's Court, now called (6.) the King's Council, followed the King's person and had appellate jurisdiction over the smaller King's Court. The former was the origin of the Privy Council (see COURT, 14); the latter, of the King's Bench (see COURT, 8).

In modern times, up to the passing of the JUDICATURE ACT, q. v., the three (7.) Superior courts of common law, which, with the Court of Chancery (see COURT, 15), formed the four Superior courts of the kingdom, were the King's Bench; the Common Pleas; and the Exchequer. 8. The King's Bench or Queen's Bench, l. Bancus regis, in theory followed the King's person (coram ipso rege), but in fact sat at Westminster. It was the highest court of common law in England; had four puisne justices and a chief justice, who was the Chief Justice of England; took cognizance of criminal cases on the crown side or crown office, and of civil cases on the plea side. Formerly, its civil jurisdiction was confined to trespasses vi et armis, on the theory that they were offences against the King's peace; but by the fictions of the Bill of Middlesex and Latitat (see BILL, I. 8), it usurped jurisdiction over all personal actions. (See also COURT, 5.) 9. The Practice or Bail Court was a court auxiliary to the King's Bench, presided over by each puisne judge in rotation. 10. The Common Pleas or Common Bench, l. Communis Bancus, Communia Placita, is also derived from the old King's Court, by a clause in Magna Charta fixing the hearing of common pleas (civil cases, pleas between subject and subject) at Westminster. It had the exclusive jurisdiction of real actions, and universal jurisdiction, for a long time also exclusive, of personal actions between subject and subject. There were four puisne justices and a chief justice. Appeals were anciently taken to the K. B.; but in the present century only to the judges of the K. B. and the barons of the Exchequer in the Exchequer Chamber (see COURT, 12), and thence to the House of Lords (see COURT, 13). 11. The Exchequer was originally the royal treasury; and its functions were to keep the royal accounts, to collect the royal revenues and debts, and escheats. Common pleas were anciently held there as matter of favor, the court affording peculiar advantages by its records, which include the Domesday book, and its permanent location at Westminster. The holding of common pleas was, however, forbidden by the Articula super Chartas in 1290; and the Exchequer became a purely fiscal court, until it regained its jurisdiction by use of the fiction that the plaintiff was a debtor to the King. In modern times, there were two divisions of this court; the receipt, which managed the revenue and such matters, and the court or plea side, which had jurisdiction of all personal actions between subject and subject. The court had both an equity and a common-law side until 1842, when the equity jurisdiction was transferred to Chancery. The Exchequer was the lowest of the three superior courts, and had four puisne barons and one chief baron.

12. The Exchequer Chamber was an intermediate court of appeal between the three superior courts of common law and the House of Lords. When sitting on an appeal from any one court, it was composed of the judges of the other two courts. This court was originally two different Courts, one of which heard appeals from the Court of Exchequer, and the other heard appeals from the Court of King's Bench. These two Courts were amalgamated in 1830; see Holdworth's Hist. vol. I, 107. 13. The House of Lords was the supreme court of judicature in England, having appellate jurisdiction over the common-law courts, and probably also over the Court of Chancery; and it has now appellate jurisdiction over the Court of Appeal (see COURT, 26). Its original jurisdiction is now obsolete, except as a court of impeachment. It is presided over by the Lord High Chancellor, and only such peers as have performed judicial junctions take part. 14. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council had jurisdiction in certain colonial causes, and appellate jurisdiction from the courts of admiralty and the commissioners in lunacy. (See also COURT, 26, 83, 87, 89.)

B. The Superior Courts of Equity were as follows: — 15. The Court of Chancery, l. Cancellaria, was the court of the Lord High Chancellor, who in theory exercises such judicial powers as reside in the Crown (see COURT, 19). Originally, such powers were invoked as a favor of the King, but were long since crystallized into the system of Equity. The Court of Chancery was the highest court of equity, and reckoned one of the four modern superior courts. Its ordinary jurisdiction, long since practically obsolete, consisted chiefly in the issuing of royal writs, writs under the great seal, original; which were all framed in Chancery as the (officina justitiæ) mint of justice. The extraordinary jurisdiction was what is now known as Equity. Besides this, the Court of Chancery and the Chancellor had certain statutory powers. In modern times, there have been six superior courts of equity, over which the Court of Chancery proper, just mentioned, had appellate jurisdiction; the (16.) Court of the Master of the Rolls, and (17.) three Vice-Chancellor's Courts, each presided over by a Vice-Chancellor. Also, by the 14 and 15 Vict. c. 83, was established (18.) the Court of the Lords Justices of Appeal, of whom there were two; and who, with the Lord Chancellor, formed the (18.) Court of Appeal in Chancery.

By the 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, usually known as the Judicature Act, is established one (19.) Supreme Court of Judicature. Into this the High Court of Chancery, the King's Bench, Common Pleas and Exchequer, the High Court of Admiralty, the Court of Probate, and the Divorce Court, are united and consolidated. The London Court of Bankruptcy (see COURT, 48) remains an independent court, though the office of chief judge in bankruptcy is filled by a judge of the High Court of Justice (see COURT, 20), and the decisions of the court are subject to review by the High Court of Appeal (see COURT, 26). This Supreme Court of Judicature consists of two divisions, one to be called (20.) Her Majesty's High Court of Justice, and the other Her Majesty's Court of Appeal (see COURT, 26). The jurisdiction of the former is chiefly original; and includes in general that previously exercised by the Courts of Chancery, King's Bench, Common Pleas, Exchequer, Admiralty, Probate, Divorce, Common Pleas at Lancaster, Pleas at Durham, and by the Assize courts. Except, however, the appellate jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal in Chancery (see COURT, 18), or of the same court sitting as a court of appeal in bankruptcy; the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal in Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster; the jurisdiction, whether of the Lord Chancellor or Lords Justices, over idiots, lunatics, and persons of unsound mind; the jurisdiction of the Lord Chancellor in the matters of letters patent and commissions under the great seal, or over colleges and charities; the jurisdiction of the Master of the Rolls over records in England. The members of the High Court of Justice are the Chief Justice of England, the Master of the Rolls, the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, the Chief Baron of the Exchequer, the Vice-Chancellors of the High Court of Chancery, the Judge of the Court of Probate, and of the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes, the puisne judges of the King's Bench and Common Pleas, the junior barons of the Exchequer, and the Judge of the High Court of Admiralty. The Lord Chief Justice of England is President of the Court, which is divided into five divisions: the (21.) Chancery Division; (22.) King's [Queen's] Bench Division; (23.) Common Pleas Division; (24.) Exchequer Division; (25.) Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division. To each of these, as a general rule, are assigned the judges of the corresponding old court, similarly named, with substantially the same jurisdiction. By Order in Council, December 16, 1880, authorized by § 32, of the Judicature Act of 1873, there was a fusion of the Common Pleas and Exchequer Divisions in the Queen's Bench Division, and the offices of Chief Baron of the Exchequer and Chief Justice of the Common Pleas were abolished; see Hartshorne's Cts. & Proc. 180. 26. The High Court of Appeal has a jurisdiction chiefly appellate. It includes the appellate jurisdiction of the Lord Chancellor, and of the Court of Appeal in Chancery, and of the same court when sitting as a court of appeal in bankruptcy; the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal in Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster, and of the Chancellor of the Duchy and County Palatine of Lancaster when sitting alone or apart from the Lords Justices of Appeal in Chancery, as a judge of rehearing or appeal from decrees or orders of the Lancaster chancery courts; the jurisdiction of the Lord Warden of the Stannaries and his assessors, of the Exchequer Chamber, of the King or Queen in council, and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in admiralty and lunacy; and general appellate jurisdiction from the High Court of Justice. Appeals lie from this court to the House of Lords. The judges of the Court of Appeal are the Lord Chancellor, the Chief Justice of England, the Master of the Rolls, the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, the Chief Baron of the Exchequer, who are styled the ex officio judges of the court; also the Lords Justices of Appeal in Chancery, and an additional judge appointed. These latter are the ordinary judges of the court, and are styled Justices of Appeal. The Lord Chancellor is President of the Court.

C. The inferior English common law courts which existed generally throughout the kingdom, and were not of a local or special nature, are as follows: — 27. The courts of Assize and Nisi Prius (see ASSIZE; NISI PRIUS), or Gaol Delivery, Oyer and Terminer, succeeded the ancient courts of the justices in eyre. These Assizes are the ordinary courts for the trial of jury cases by a jury of the county; and are held twice a year, formerly in the vacations after Trinity and Hilary terms, in every county except Middlesex; two judges of the Superior Court being appointed for each circuit, under four, formerly five, commissions (see ASSIZE), and all England being divided into six circuits, and Wales into two. The court for London and Middlesex is within no circuit, and is termed the (28.) London and Westminster sittings. These courts are now part of the High Court of Justice (see COURT, 20). 29. The County courts were held by the sheriff once a month or oftener to try small cases, not exceeding 40s. in amount (though larger cases and real actions might be brought under a justicies), and for certain other purposes. The freeholders of the county were the judges and members of the court; and being a popular court, not of record, it early lost its jurisdiction, causes being removable into the Superior Courts by writs of recordari facias loquelam, false judgment, and pone. (For the new County Courts, see COURT, 41.) 30. The Hundred courts were similar and inferior to the County Courts (see COURT, 29) held by the steward, with the freeholders of the hundred as judges. It is not to be confounded with the (31.) Hundred gemote of Saxon times, which had larger civil and criminal jurisdiction. 32. The Court-leet or View of frankpledge was a court of record in a particular lordship, hundred, or manor, held once a year before the steward of the leet. It existed by royal charter or franchise; and was a court of small criminal jurisdiction, long since superseded by the Quarter Sessions. They also took view of frankpledge and made presentment by jury of crimes. 33. The Sheriff's Tourn was a court similar to that last mentioned, held by the sheriff twice a year in various parts of the county, being the great court-leet of the county. 34. The Court Baron (manorial courts) was a court, not of record, incident to every manor. In one sense, it is a customary court, having jurisdiction over copyhold lands, surrenders, and admittances; in another, it was a common law court, similar in jurisdiction and nature to the hundred courts, sometimes independent both of them and of the county courts. 35. The Burghmotes, borough courts, or Hustings existed by special franchise, and resembled the county courts (see COURT, 29) in nature and jurisdiction. 36. The courts of Piepoudre, fr., Pedis pulverizati, l., Pipowders, were courts of record held by the steward, or him that had the toll, of every fair or market. They had cognizance of all cases of contract and minor offences arising during that particular fair or market; and were courts of speedy and summary process, so called from the dusty feet of the suitors, or from the French words pied puldreux, a pedlar; see Select Essays in Anglo-Amer. Legal Hist., Vol. III. 9. 37. The court of the Clerk of the Market had authority to punish misdemeanors and try weights and measures; they existed in every fair or market throughout the kingdom. 38. The Coroner's and (39.) Sheriff's courts were of record, and are more properly termed inquests, being inquisitions into the property of treasure-trove, on violent deaths, boundaries of lands, damages, and other matters. 40. The Quarter Sessions, or County Sessions: a minor criminal court, or general sessions of the peace, held in each county four times a year before two justices of the peace, one of whom must be of the quorum, or the recorder in boroughs. 41. The new County courts were established by the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95; they are over five hundred in number, and have a common-law jurisdiction up to £50; also of all consent actions, ejectments, attachments, interrogatories; and an equity jurisdiction up to £500; as well as some jurisdiction in probate, admiralty, and bankruptcy. Appeals lie from them to the divisions of the High Court of Justice.

D. The more important English courts of special or local nature or jurisdiction are as follows: — 42. The courts of Ancient Demesne were anciently held by a bailiff appointed by the King; in them alone the tenants of the King's demesne could be impleaded; see ANCIENT DEMESNE. 43. The Court of Augmentations was established by the 27 Hen. VIII. c. 27, for protecting the King's interests as to suppressed monasteries, and dissolved in the reign of Mary. 44. The Star Chamber, Camera Stellata, l., was an ancient court, remodelled under Henry VII. and Henry VIII. It consisted of divers lords spiritual and temporal, being privy councillors, together with two judges of the courts of common law; and tried, without the intervention of a jury, matters of riots, perjury, misbehavior of sheriffs, and other high misdemeanors. By usurpation of jurisdiction it became also a court of civil matters and revenue; and, owing to great abuses, was abolished under Charles I. 45. The Court of Wards and Liveries was founded under Henry VIII., to inquire into matters arising from tenures in chivalry, as concerning the wardship, marriage, and lands of the King's tenants in capite; and abolished by the 12 Car. II. c. 24. 46. The Court of the Lord High Steward is a court of peers, instituted during the recess of Parliament for the trial of a peer for treason or felony or misprision of either. 47. The Central Criminal Court was established by the 4 & 5 Will. IV. c. 36, for the trial of offences committed in London, Middlesex, or Surrey; and succeeded the (48.) Old Bailey. 49. The Court of Criminal Appeal, or Court for the Consideration of Crown Cases reserved, was established by the 11 & 12 Vict. c. 78, and was composed of the judges of the superior courts, or such as could attend, for deciding any question of law reserved by any judge or magistrate of any court of oyer and terminer, gaol delivery, or quarter sessions, before which a prisoner had been found guilty by verdict. Its judgment is final; and its jurisdiction is now transferred to any five judges of the High Court of Justice. 50. Courts of Bankruptcy. There have been courts of bankruptcy in different districts from which an appeal usually lay to the London Court of Bankruptcy (see COURT, 19), established by the 1 & 2 Will. IV. c. 56. The county courts (see COURT, 41) have now a bankruptcy jurisdiction. 51. The 20 & 21 Vict. c. 77 established a Probate Court, to be held in London, which court exercised the testamentary jurisdiction previously belonging to the ecclesiastical courts. It is now consolidated into the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty divisions of the High Court of Justice (see COURT, 25). Into the same division was also consolidated the (52.) Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes, which by the 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85 exercised the matrimonial jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical courts, decided on the validity of marriages, and granted divorces a vinculo.

E. The inferior English courts of a local nature or special jurisdiction are as follows: — 53. The Court of Lord Steward of the King's Household, established by the 33 Henry VIII. c. 12, and long obsolete, had jurisdiction of treason, blows, and homicides within the limits (two hundred feet from the gate) of any palace or house where the King might reside. 54. There was also a Court of the Lord Steward, Treasurer, or Comptroller of the King's Household established by 3 Henry VII. c. 14, to inquire of felony by a servant of the household; also obsolete. 55. The Court of Marshalsea held plea of trespasses or debts where a servant within the King's household was concerned. Its jurisdiction extended to the verge, twelve miles around the royal residence. It was derived from the old Aula regis, and a writ of error lay to Parliament only. It being ambulatory, Charles I. created the (56.) Curia Palatii, i. e., or Palace Court, to succeed it. This court had jurisdiction of all personal actions whatever arising within twelve miles of the royal palace at Whitehall, not including the city of London, and was abolished in 1849. 57. There were many Borough Courts, and (58.) Courts of Hustings in the old English cities; and particularly, in London, the (59.) Sheriffs' Courts, holden before their steward or judge, from which a writ of error lay to the (60.) Court of Hustings, before the mayor, recorder, and sheriffs; and thence to justices appointed by the King's commission, who sat in the church of St. Martins-le-Grand; thence to the House of Lords (see COURT, 35). This (61.) Court for the City of London, as it was later called, has now become the county court for London. 62. The Lord Mayor's Court in London has both equity and common-law jurisdiction; and is presided over by the Recorder, or, in his absence, the Common Sergeant. The (63.) Courts of Conscience or Requests were tribunals, not of record, established in London and other towns, for the recovery of small debts; they are succeeded by the county courts, and mostly abolished. 64. The Court of Policies of Assurance was established under Elizabeth, for determining summarily all cases concerning policies of insurance on merchandise in London. Abolished in 1863, although long before obsolete. 65. The Universities Courts were established in Oxford and Cambridge; the (66.) Chancellor's Court had jurisdiction of personal actions and minor offences of members of the University; the (67.) Court of the Lord High Steward had jurisdiction of treasons, felonies, and mayhems committed by members of the University. They were formerly governed by the rules of the civil law; but now their jurisdiction, particularly in Cambridge, is in great part obsolete. 68. The courts of the Counties Palatine. That of Chester, a court of mixed jurisdiction, has been abolished. The (69.) Court of Common Pleas at Lancaster and (70.) of Pleas at Durham have lost their jurisdiction under the Judicature Act of 1873; but the Chancery courts of these counties are retained. 71. The Courts of the Principality of Wales were private courts of extensive jurisdiction, abolished by the 11 Geo. IV. and 1 Will. IV., when Wales was divided into two circuits for the judges of assize. 72. The Stannary Courts administered justice among the tin-miners of Devonshire and Cornwall. They were presided over by the Vice-Warden, with appeal to the Lord Warden, of the Stannaries. This appellate jurisdiction is now transferred to the High Court of Appeal; and the plaintiff may, in the first instance, sue in the county court. In like manner, there are two (73.) Barmote or Berghmote Courts in Derbyshire, called respectively the Great and Small, which administer justice among the miners of the Peak. 74. The Forest Courts existed for the government of the King's forests, to punish injuries to the vert, venison, or covert. They comprised the courts of (75.) Attachments, Wood-mote, or Forty-days Court, held by the verderors of the forest, to inquire into offences against the vert and venison; the (76.) Court of Regard, for the lawing of dogs; of (77.) Swanimote, a court which met three times a year to consider agistment, pannage, and fawning. This court has been confused with Sweinmote: an inquisition, held by the sweins or freeholders in the forest, to inquire into grievances committed by the officers of the forest, see Holdsworth's Hist. Vol. I. 342, and to try presentments certified from the Court of Attachments; and of (78.) Justice-seat, held before the Chief Justice in Eyre to determine all trespasses, claims of franchise, and other causes. All these courts were obsolete before the Restoration.

F. Ecclesiastical Courts. 79. The Ecclesiastical Courts, or Courts Christian. In Norman times, these courts consisted of councils, or synods, composed entirely or partly of the clergy, and had jurisdiction of crimes or delicts, and even of causes concerning land. These councils were national, provincial, or diocesan; the first resembled the lay Witenagemote; the last was the origin of the ecclesiastical court of modern times. This last had jurisdiction of matters ecclesiastical or pecuniary (withholding of tithes, etc.), matrimonial (affecting the relations of the sexes, legitimacy, divorce, etc.), and testamentary (the probate of wills, legacies, etc.). The last two kinds of jurisdiction were transferred to the Court of Probate and the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes (see COURT, 51, 52), and are now vested in the Supreme Court of Judicature. The law of ecclesiastical courts was founded in the civil and canon law; and they are not courts of record. They are seven in number: the Archdeacon's Courts, the Consistory Courts, the Court of Arches, the Court of Peculiars, the Prerogative Courts of the two archbishops, the Court of Faculties, and, on appeal, the Privy Council, formerly the Court of Final Appeal, or Court of Delegates. There was also the Convocation, and the Court of High Commission. 80. The Consistory or Diocesan Court was held by each bishop, or his chancellor, in his diocese, with appeal to the archbishop. 81. The Archdeacon's Court was a minor court of concurrent or delegated jurisdiction in some part of the diocese, with appeal to the bishop. Both these were termed (82.) Ordinary's Courts. 83. The Court of Arches, so called because held in the church of St. Mary-le-Bow (Sancta Maria de Arcubus, l.), by the Dean of the Arches, later held in Doctors' Commons, now in Westminster Hall, was the principal consistory court of the Archbishop of Canterbury, with appeal from all other ecclesiastical courts in his province, and extensive original jurisdiction by means of letters of request. The Audience Court was similar, but of inferior jurisdiction. An appeal formerly lay to the Pope; afterwards to the Court of Delegates, now to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. 84. The Court of Peculiars is a branch of the Court of Arches, and has jurisdiction over all those parishes of the province of Canterbury which are exempt from the ordinary's jurisdiction and subject to the metropolitan only. An appeal lies to the Court of Arches. 85. The Prerogative Courts were courts held in the provinces of York and Canterbury before a judge appointed by the Archbishop, which had jurisdiction over testamentary matters where the decedent left bona notabilia, goods to the value of £5 in two distinct parishes. This jurisdiction is now transferred (see COURT, 79). 86. The Court of Faculties, a tribunal belonging to the Archbishop, grants various licenses, creates rights to pews, monuments, burial, etc. 87. The Court of Delegates was created under Henry VIII., and was the great Court of Final Appeal in ecclesiastical and admiralty causes; succeeded by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The decree of the Court of Delegates was sometimes revised by (88.) Commissioners of Review. 89. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has now practically ceased to be a court of appeal, even in ecclesiastical matters; such jurisdiction being transferred to the High Court of Appeal (see COURT, 14).

G. Courts of Admiralty. 90. The High Court of Admiralty. In theory the court of the Lord High Admiral; presided over by his deputy, the Judge of Admiralty, and held in Doctors' Commons. It was a court not of record, having civil and criminal jurisdiction over maritime affairs. The criminal jurisdiction was conferred upon the Central Criminal Court, upon its establishment. The civil jurisdiction is two-fold; and there are two courts, the (91.) Instance Court, for ordinary marine contracts, and the (92.) Prize Court. The Court of Admiralty now forms part of one division of the High Court of Justice; and the Instance Court has jurisdiction of assaults, batteries, collisions, restitution of ships, piratical or illegal takings, at sea; and of contracts between part owners of ships, seamen's wages, pilotage, bottomry bonds, salvage, tonnage, ship provisions, and mortgages. The county courts have also some admiralty jurisdiction.

H. Military Courts. 93. Courts-martial. The earliest was the Court of Chivalry, an ancient court not of record, held before the Lord High Constable or Earl Marshal of England, touching contracts or deeds of war and arms, both without and within the realm, coats of arms, precedence, etc.; its jurisdiction being criminal as well as civil, but of vague and indefinite extent. It became obsolete in the eighteenth century. The modern Courts-martial date from the Revolution. They are naval or military, and from their judgment there is no appeal. They have jurisdiction of offences against the mutiny act and the articles of war.

II. Scotch Courts. 94. The Court of Session is the supreme civil court of Scotland. There are two divisions; the first presided over by the Lord-President, the second by the Lord Justice-Clerk. Besides these two, there are eleven Lords Ordinary, making thirteen judges. Before the Union, there was a (95.) Court of Exchequer, now merged in the Court of Session. The judges of the Court of Session, having the power formerly exercised by the Commissioners of Teinds (Tithes), now sit also as the (96.) Teind Court, having jurisdiction of parish matters, valuations and sales of teinds, etc. An appeal lies from this court, as also from the Court of Session, to the House of Lords. 97. The Justiciary Court is the supreme criminal court, and is composed of five Lords of Session, with the Lord-President or Justice-Clerk as President. There are three circuits of the judges of this court; and appeal lies to the House of Lords. 98. The Sheriff's Courts are county courts of large civil and criminal jurisdiction, and formerly proceeded without a jury. There are also (99.) Bailie's courts in burghs, and (100.) Justice of the Peace courts. The High Court of Admiralty and Commissary Court or Consistorial Court are now obsolete.

III. 101. Irish Courts. Until the year 1877, when the Judicature Act for Ireland (40 & 41 Vict., c. 57) was passed, Ireland had the following courts:—Queen's Bench, Exchequer, Exchequer Chamber, Court for Crown Cases Reserved, Consolidated Chamber and Registry Appeals, Court of Chancery, of Appeal in Chancery, Rolls Court, Vice-Chancellor's Court, Landed Estates Court, Court of Bankruptcy and Insolvency, of Admiralty, of Probate, and Ecclesiastical Courts. By the Judicature Act, the Courts of Chancery, Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, Exchequer, Probate, the Court for Matrimonial Causes and Matters, and the Landed Estates Court, were fused into a Supreme Court of Judicature for Ireland. There is a High Court of Justice, with five divisions, and a Court of Appeal, as in England, with appeal from the latter to the House of Lords; and law and equity are concurrently administered.

IV. American Courts. 102. Courts of the United States. They have jurisdiction exclusive of the State courts in the following cases: crimes cognizable under the authority of the United States; suits for penalties and forfeitures incurred under United States laws; civil causes of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; seizures on land or on waters not within admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; cases arising under patent-right or copyright laws; matters and proceedings in bankruptcy; controversies of a civil nature, where a State is a party, except between a State and its citizens, or between a State and citizens of other States, or aliens; suits and proceedings against ambassadors or public ministers, or their domestics or domestic servants, or against consuls or vice-consuls. 103. The Senate sits as a court of impeachment to try the President, Vice-President, and civil officers of the United States for treason, bribery, and other high crimes and misdemeanors upon a presentment being made by the House of Representatives. 104. The Supreme Court consists of one chief and eight associate justices; and sits at Washington. It has exclusive jurisdiction in nearly all civil cases where a State is a party, and in suits or proceedings against an ambassador or his servants; original jurisdiction, not exclusive, in cases between a State and its citizens, or between a State and citizens of other States, or aliens; in suits by an ambassador or his servants, or in which a consul or vice-consul is a party; it has power to issue writs of prohibition to the District Courts when proceeding in admiralty, and writs of mandamus in certain cases; it has appellate jurisdiction from the final judgment of any Circuit Court, or District Court acting as Circuit Court, in civil actions at law when $2,000 is involved, by writ of error, and in cases of equity, admiralty, and maritime jurisdiction, by appeal; and in case of division of opinion between the circuit judge and the district judge, by review; and, without regard to the amount involved, in all patent, copyright, or revenue cases; and in cases of deprivation of rights of citizenship, suits for conspiracy against "civil rights," cases tried by the Circuit Court without a jury; and from the final judgment of Territorial courts or the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia where $1,000 is involved, or where United States statutes or treaties are brought in question; and from the Court of Claims from all judgments adverse to the United States, and on behalf of the plaintiff, where $3,000 is involved. 105. The Circuit Courts. There are nine circuits. The first includes the districts of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island; the second, Vermont, Connecticut, and New York; the third, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware; the fourth, Maryland, the Virginias, and the Carolinas; the fifth, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas; the sixth, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, and Tennessee; the seventh, Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin; the eighth, Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Utah, Oklahoma, and New Mexico; the ninth, Oregon, Nevada, California, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Arizona, and the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii. Each court is composed of a member of the Supreme Court as Circuit Justice, a Circuit Judge, who shall reside within his circuit, and the district judge of the district where the circuit court is held; and may be held by any one of the three sitting alone, or by any two sitting together; but a district judge cannot vote on appeal or error from his own decision. The Circuit Courts have original jurisdiction in civil suits at common law or equity where $500 is involved and an alien is a party, or the suit is between a citizen of the State where it is brought and a citizen of another State, or of suits in equity involving $500, where the United States are petitioners, or at common law where the United States, or any officer thereof suing under the authority of any act of Congress, are plaintiffs; of suits under import, internal revenue, and postal laws; of patent and copyright suits, suits against national banks, suits in bankruptcy, and in divers other cases. They have appellate jurisdiction from the District Courts in cases involving $50, of equity, admiralty, or maritime jurisdiction. The Circuit Court meets at least twice a year in every district. 105 a. The Circuit Court of Appeals was created by Act of March 3, 1891. Its jurisdiction is appellate merely. In each circuit the Supreme Court justice, assigned thereto, and the circuit judges of that particular circuit, sit in the Circuit Court of Appeals, but no judge before whom a cause or question has been tried or heard in the District or Circuit Court can sit on the hearing thereof on error or appeal. There being nine circuits, as at present constituted, there are, therefore, nine of these Circuit Courts.

of Appeals. 106. The District Courts. There is one or more district in every State, for which a District Judge is appointed. These courts are the lowest of the United States courts, and have original jurisdiction of certain crimes and offences cognisable under the authority of the United States; of piracy, when no Circuit Court is held in the district; of suits for penalties and forfeitures incurred under United States laws; of suits brought by the United States or an officer thereof authorised to sue; of suits in equity to enforce internal revenue taxes; of suits for penalties or damages for frauds against the United States; of suits under postal laws; of all civil causes of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, and of seizures on land, or waters not subject to admiralty jurisdiction; of suits against conspirators, as for deprivation of "civil rights"; of suits to recover offices in certain cases, or for the removal of officers; of suits against national banks; and of proceedings under national bankruptcy laws; besides some other less common proceedings. 107. The Court of Claims consists of one chief justice and four judges, and holds one annual session at Washington. It has jurisdiction of all claims founded upon any law of Congress, or upon any regulation of an Executive Department, or upon any contract, expressed or implied, with the government of the United States, and all claims which may be referred to it by either House of Congress; and of all set-offs or counter claims made by the United States; of all claims by a disbursing officer for relief from responsibility for government funds or papers put in his charge; and of all claims for captured or abandoned property. 107 a. The Court of Customs Appeals consists of a presiding judge and four associate judges. It is always open and sessions may be held in the several circuits as the Court may designate. This court has exclusive appellate jurisdiction to review by appeal, final decisions by a board of general appraisers respecting classification of merchandise, imposed rate of duty, charges thereunder, and other incidental questions. It was established in 1909. 107 b. The Court of Commerce consists of five judges from time to time designated and assigned thereto, for a period of five years, by the Chief Justice of the United States, from among circuit judges. It has exclusive jurisdiction in: First. All cases for the enforcement, otherwise than by adjudication and collection, of a forfeiture or penalty or by infliction of criminal punishment, or any order of the Interstate Commerce Commission other than for the payment of money. Second. Cases brought to enjoin, set aside, annul, or suspend in whole or in part any order of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Third. Such cases as by section three of the Act entitled "An Act to further regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the States," approved February nineteenth, nineteen hundred and three, are authorized to be maintained in a circuit court of the United States. Fourth. All such mandamus proceedings as under the provisions of section twenty or section twenty-three of the Act entitled "An Act to regulate commerce," approved February fourth, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, as amended, are authorized to be maintained in a circuit court of the United States. It was established in 1910.

108. The State Courts. Generally, in each of the States, there is a Supreme Court, Supreme Court of Appeals, of Errors, or Supreme Judicial Court, having both original and appellate jurisdiction, the judges of which sit at stated times in the various county seats at nisi prius, and at the State capital in bank. These courts have usually power to issue remedial writs, such as error, supersedeas, certiorari, habeas corpus; and particularly the higher writs, like the English prerogative writs, such as quo warranto, mandamus, prohibition, and ne exeat regno (republica). Frequently, they are the only courts exercising equity powers, or having jurisdiction of appeals from courts of probate, of awards of land damages, and of divorce or matrimonial causes. In some States the jurisdiction of the supreme courts is appellate only; in others, an appellate court above the supreme has been established, called the Court of Appeals, or Court of Errors, and in Tennessee there is an inferior appellate Court of Chancery Appeals. There is generally also a court (109.) called the Court of Common Pleas, County Court, Circuit Court for the County, or Superior Court, having large original jurisdiction, and some appellate jurisdiction from minor courts or tribunals. Usually this court has also sittings in bank. In some States there are Courts of Chancery or Equity, exercising general equity powers and distinct from the courts of common law. There are usually (110.) district courts exercising powers over the probate of wills, matters testamentary, guardianship, and occasionally trusts; called Courts of Probate, Ordinary, Orphans' or Surrogate's, and Register's courts. Sometimes there is a State court of criminal jurisdiction or a criminal branch of a court of general jurisdiction, termed the (111.) Court of Oyer and Terminer. 112. There are generally many minor courts, of inferior, limited, local, or special jurisdiction, both civil and criminal, termed City Courts, Municipal Courts, Police Courts, District Courts, Justice of the Peace Courts, Courts of Hustings, Courts of Sessions, Parish Courts, Courts of Land Registration, Court of Claims, etc.

113. Territorial Courts. These are created under the authority of the United States government; and usually consist of a Supreme Court, with a chief and two associate justices; a District Court, of which one of the Supreme Court justices is judge, both these courts having equity as well as common-law jurisdiction; probate courts, and justice of the peace courts. There is an appeal from the Territorial Courts to the Supreme Court of the United States in cases where $1,000, or, in Washington, $2,000, is involved.

114. There is a Supreme Court for the District of Columbia, having the jurisdiction of the Circuit Courts of the United States; and any one of its justices, holding a special term, has the power and jurisdiction of the District Courts of the United States. This court has also jurisdiction of cases arising under the copyright and patent laws, bankruptcy, and other special cases. There is an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, where $1,000 is involved.

V. In General. 115. The term Royal courts is applied to the King's courts, established by the Conqueror or his successors, on the Norman theory that all justice flows from the King, of which the jurisdiction rested directly on royal authority. 116. The term Popular courts is usually applied to such courts as existed before the Conquest (except the Witenagemote), which were national, popular, or social tribunals; such as the hundred, county, and borough courts. 117. A Court of Record is one which has power to fine or imprison for contempt of its authority. The records of a court of record were formerly kept on parchment and written in Latin; they are received in other courts as conclusive evidence of their own genuineness; and these records are in many cases conclusive evidence of the matters therein contained.

Covenant. 1. An agreement, a promise, or an express statement, made by a deed, or contained in a deed, between two or more persons, and sealed by one or more of them; see Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 151; 3 Bl. Com. 166. Covenants are dependent on some prior act or condition, see 11 Vt. 549; or independent, see 21 Pick. 428; or concurrent, when each is dependent on the other, and either party must aver performance of his own or readiness to perform it, before seeking to enforce the other against the other party; see 16 Mo. 450. They are also in deed, expressed in the deed, or in law, implied by law; see 4 Kent, 473. They are inherent when relating directly to the land granted, or collateral, when affecting some other matter; see 5 B. & Ald. 7. They run with the land into the hands of other grantees, or they exist in gross. Covenants of title are divided into six common classes: of seisin, that the grantor is duly seised; of right to convey; against incumbrances; for further assurance; of quiet enjoyment; and warranty. These are sometimes called real covenants; more particularly the last three, which run with the land. The first three are more properly personal, and cannot be enforced by an assignee of the land.

Tenure. I. Allodial tenure is not properly tenure at all, being absolute ownership, as distinct from (II.) feudal tenure: where lands were held of some superior lord by services or rent; see 2 Bl. Com. 59; Rob. El. L. Rev. ed., § 90; FEUDUM; FEE. Tenure differs, —

A. According to the nature of the service. 1. Frank tenure or freehold: by free services. This includes (a.) Knight-service, (b.) socage, (c.) spiritual service. (a.) Knight-service, military tenure, tenure in chivalry, comprises knight-service proper, where lands were held by the service of attending the lord in war, furnishing armed men, horses, etc., or paying escuage in commutation therefor; grand serjeanty, a tenure of the Crown, by performing some special or personal service, which was not considered base because rendered to the King; and cornage, a kind of grand serjeanty, by winding a horn at the approach of the Scots or other enemies. All these tenures were abolished by the 12 Car. II. c. 24. (b.) Socage, service of the plough, comprising free and common socage, by fixed, free agricultural services; usually rent, either in farm-produce or money; petty serjeanty, which was a socage tenure held of the Crown, by some small annual rent or render; burgage, a socage tenure in old boroughs, affected by local customs. In socage tenures the lands anciently descended to all the sons in common, which custom persisted in Kent; whence the Kentish socage tenure is called Gavelkind. (c.) Spiritual service; which included frankalmoign and Divine service; see FRANKALMOIGN. 2. Base tenure or Villanage; which was either pure or privileged according as the services, though base, were certain or uncertain. This only survived in copyhold tenures; see COPYHOLD; CUSTOMARY FREEHOLD; ANCIENT DEMESNE.

B. According to the lord of whom the land is held; as (a.) in capite, of the King, either ut de corona (as of the Crown) or ut de honore, in virtue of some honor, dignity, or manor of which the King was proprietor; (b.) of a mesne lord, the origin of one variety of base fee; (c.) of the lord of a manor, copyhold.

Usance. The customary time allowed, as between different countries, for the payment of a bill of exchange, after its date.

Use. Originally a beneficial estate, like a trust; the terre-tenue of feoffees to uses having the legal title, and the cestui que use the beneficial interest; see 2 Bl. Com. 137, 271, 327. The Statute of Uses 27 Hen. VIII. c. 10, converted the use into the legal estate, and gave rise to many new kinds of conveyances without livery of seisin. A use upon a use, as if land be conveyed to A to the use of B to the use of C, is not good, and B will have the legal estate; see Trusts CASE. Uses are present (executed), which vest immediately, or future (executory), which vest at some future time; see 2 Bl. Com. 32. Executory uses may be either springing (primary), which are to arise at some future time, there being no previous use; or shifting (secondary), which take effect in derogation of some preceding use. A contingent use is one which may never take effect. Uses are also express, by act of the parties; or implied; which latter may be either resulting or constructive; see 2 Bl. Com. 330; TRUST. Thus, an estate is granted by A (without consideration) to B and his heirs to the use of C and his heirs on A's death; but if C die without issue at his death, then to the use of D. Here B has the legal estate, A a resulting use, C a springing use, and D a shifting use, which is also contingent. A's use is executed; all the others are executory. A constructive use: one raised by the law in modification or extension of an express use; as if a superstitious use were diverted to a charitable use. A charitable use: such a use as is authorized by the 43 Eliz. c. 4 and other statutes, in spite of the mortmain acts and the rule against perpetuities; such as uses for the maintenance of schools, hospitals, public works, and other charities.

Later, the written command or precept of any court or officer; see BREVE; ACTION; BILL OF MIDDLESEX; TRESPASS. Prerogative writ: a special writ issued by the royal authority or prerogative, as matter of favor; as distinct from the writs de cursu, writs of course, issued by the Crown, or court, or person authorized by the Crown, as matter of right. The writs de cursu were at first vague in form, but by the time of Glanvill had assumed definite shape; they were formed writs, called later original writs, and by promulgation in the year 1258 no new writs could be issued. By the Stat. Westminster II. c. 24, it was enacted that new writs should be issued in similar cases (see CASE; ACTION ON THE CASE), whence these latter were termed writs on the case, as distinct from the original writs. Both the original writs, or writs de cursu, and writs on the case were original writs, as distinct from judicial writs; that is, they issued from Chancery under the seal of the King, as the fountain of justice, at the beginning of actions; judicial writs issue from a court, and include all writs issuing after the beginning of the action; see BILL; PROCESS. Close writs, clause writs, are sealed writs; grants of the King, sealed with his great seal, but directed to some particular person for particular purposes; not letters patent. Writ of inquiry: a proceeding by which the sheriff inquires by a jury into the amount of damages, after judgment, by default. For other writs, see their respective titles.

Writer to the signet. Anciently, clerks in the office of the Scotch Secretary of State, who prepared writs passing the King's signet, and various other processes; they are also attorneys or solicitors, and privileged to conduct causes in the Court of Session.
